

In Memoriam

was a constant advocate for women and especially women's education. She was a member of the Legacy Circle and very active member of AAUW at both the local and state level in the late 1990s and early 2000s.

She served in many leadership roles and was part of the inaugural planning for Teentech which continues to provide STEM experiences to high school girls. She was one of those forward-looking people who believed in the mission of AAUW and became a member of the Legacy Circle to affirm her commitment to empowering women and girls now and in the future. Sylvia passed away on August 24th, but she will be remembered for her generosity and dedication to the principles of AAUW which will continue through her bequest to the American Association of University Women.
